MULTI-PORT MEMORY CELLS

Abstract of Disclosure

A memory array comprises memory cells of the dynamic type having a first and a second port. A cache memory is connected to the address and data paths of the first and second ports. A refresh operation is performed through one of said ports. When a refresh operation is performed through said one port, a read operation can be performed through the cache memory in parallel.